Art Guard SAFE HOOK

The only hanging system and alarm in one

Art Guard Safe Hook is an independent, battery powered alarm sensor that protects hanging art and objects from theft during operating hours and in supervised situations.

Safe Hook is effective against grab-and-run theft and often serves as a primary security system for galleries. It is also ideal for larger institutions – adding an additional layer of protection for loaned works and traveling exhibitions. Its simplicity, effectiveness and affordability make Safe Hook a preferred choice by security directors and collectors who consider it an essential tool in their security protocol.

Installing Safe Hook is as simple as hanging a work of art with traditional hooks, and it works with most hanging systems. Once installed, if the painting is lifted, releasing a pressure pin on the sensor, Safe Hook emits an instantaneous 120-decibel alarm that can be heard anywhere in a small building. False alarms are almost non-existent.

As either a primary security system or secondary protection for permanent collections or works on loan SAFE HOOK closes the door on theft.
